The Institute of the Sisters of Notre Dame

WAS founded in 1803 at Amiens, by the Venerable Julie Billiart and the Viscountess Blin de Bourdon, under the auspices of the Bishop, Monseigneur de Villaret. The Rule was approved by Gregory XVI., 28th of June, 1844. The Institute is devoted to education in all its branches, from the elementary to the highest, according to circumstances. It is governed by a Superioress-General, who appoints the local superiors. The Mother House is at Namur, Belgium.

The first foundation in America was made at Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1840, by eight Sisters from Namur. At present there are twelve hundred professed religious in the United States, under the superiority of Sister Julia, the successor of Sister Louise, who governed the American houses from 1845 until her death in 1886.

The schools contributing to the Exhibit were left at liberty to select such topics as they pleased from their year's work, and present them under the form found most useful and attractive. Hence, in a mere table of contents it is impossible to give any idea of the variety of ways in which the same subject is handled, or of the beautiful and original diagrams, charts and drawings in pen and ink hat illustrate them. Many schools have sent no specimens of the regular work in drawing, believing that any inspector will recognize that a pupil who draws and finishes in ink so as to resemble engraving, can certainly do well with a simple pencil. Scarcely any lessons in history, geography or natural science are without full-page illustrations.
